Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Thursday 21 Jan 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Cold and windy today but brighter than yesterday for most.

Today:
Colder and brighter than yesterday for most. Some wintry showers about too, mainly in the north and west, but also some sunny spells. Cloudier over northeast Scotland where some heavy rain and snow. Windy, especially in the north and east.

Tonight:
Evening rain and snow over northeastern Scotland giving way to showers. Otherwise clear spells, but also a few wintry showers about, mainly in the north and west. Cold and frosty.

Friday:
Sunny spells but also some wintry showers, mainly in the north and west. Many eastern parts staying dry. Less windy than today but still breezy and feeling cold.

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Cold with further wintry showers in the north, perhaps some more organised rain, sleet and snow across the south at times. Widespread overnight frost but sunshine for many by day.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.